How to Complete Convocation With Videos

The Office of the Dean of Students designed the Convocation Video Report for students who have demonstrated a sincere effort to complete their Convocation requirements but who still lack a few credits. The office requires students to view a video and write an essay for each credit they lack.

Instructions:
1. View video from the approved list. Videos are available through the following link: http://belmont.libguides.com/music/convo

2. Develop a typed 800 word essay using one or more of the following questions;
   - What are the main ideas and principles presented in the presentation?
   - What observations, reflections, and reactions do you have?
   - How does this contribute to your development as an "educated person"?
   - How does this relate to Belmont’s mission and/or vision statements?

3. Submit completed essay via e-mail to convocation@belmont.edu or bring a hard copy to the Student Affairs Office (2nd Floor, Beaman Student Life Center) by the deadline. Essays will be reviewed for content and number of words. Incomplete/insufficient essays will be returned for a re-write. Be sure to include the following information at the top of each essay submitted:
   1. Name
   2. BUID #
   3. Video Title
   4. Convocation Category:
      - Christian Faith and Tradition
      - Community Service and Reflection
      - Creative and Performing Arts
      - Global Citizenship, Leadership, Diversity, and the Professions
      - Society and the Arts & Sciences
      - Wellness, Safety, and College Life

4. Students may submit a maximum of four video reflections. Any student requiring more than four credits must contact the Office of the Dean of Students to discuss your particular situation.
